Enron "suicide" case

by nessie Sunday, Jan. 27, 2002 at 12:26 AM

We are to place our trust in Joye Carter's "suicide" ruling in the Baxter case. Sorry, no can do . . .

Thanks to Mike Hawkins [mhawkins11@juno.com] of CIA-Drugs@yahoo.com for the following. Good job, Mike. Keep it up.

Medical Examiner fired for refusing to falsify evidence says she suspected a frame-up in case Prosecutors upset analysis didn't back theory County pays her $375,000 to settle whistleblower suit

[snip]

Harris County Commissioners Court accepted County Attorney Michael P. Fleming's recommendation to settle the case with Dr. Elizabeth "Libby" Johnson. Johnson sued the county in March 1997, contending that Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Joye Carter wrongly fired her for reporting potentially illegal cover-ups and sabotage at the office.

In the verdict, jurors said Medical Examiner Dr. Joye Carter and Johnson's immediate supervisor, Dr. Ashraf Mozayani, were responsible for damaging Johnson. The jury assessed $15,000 in damages for lost wages and benefits, and $300,000 in future compensation damages.

"They put up all kinds of smokescreens and 'rabbit trails,' but the jury saw through it all," said Johnson's attorney, Mark LaSpina. "It was a clear attempt by the county to make her look bad. She deserves compensation -- she's gone through hell in this."

A former pathologist for the county, Dr. Marilyn Murr Doyle, said she was fired for reporting Van Dusen's wrongdoings, and sued the county. A jury agreed with her and ordered the county to pay her $250,000 in damages, although a final judgment has not yet been entered in the case.

Radack said last month that he had worried that Carter would ask the county to pay her fine had she received a harsher financial penalty, which could have been as much as $500,000.

A federal jury awarded $250,000 Friday to a former Harris County pathologist who said she was fired in 1998 for blowing the whistle on what she considered illegal activity in the medical examiner's office.

The award marks the second time a jury has sided with a fired worker in the medical examiner's

Harris County Commissioner Steve Radack wants the county to hire a local law firm to review Chief Medical Examiner Dr. Joye Carter's hiring and firing practices in response to a second successful whistle-blower lawsuit against Carter's office.

[snip]

The whistle-blower suits resulted in awards totaling $625,000 to two former employees who claimed that Carter fired them for reporting illegal or potentially illegal practices at the office.

A third former employee has threatened to file a third whistle-blower suit. Those suits and legal threats have cost Carter some support on the Commissioners Court.

Shelly's dead body was airlifted by Medstar helicopter to D. C. from the field after a mercy call from the good men of The Plains Fire and Rescue Squad. Shelly's autopsy pictures, especially two of her face suggest she was beaten. It demands explanation why the report of D. C. Coroner, Dr. Joye Carter, overlooked commenting on the fact that Shelly's lips were split in two places and that there are multiple contusions and abrasions to her face and body. It is a fact that influential people in The Plains tried to have the autopsy canceled (Cf. the Sheriff's files in the Shelly Malone case.) I wonder, though, why the Coroner has missed obvious facts and misstated others in her Autopsy Report which makes no mention of visible injuries to Shelly's face and torso photographed and recorded.

Medical examiner Joye Carter conducted an autopsy on Baxter's body on Friday and found the cause of death was suicide by "penetrating gunshot to the head," a spokeswoman told Reuters. Her ruling confirmed an earlier finding by Fort Bend County Justice of the Peace Jim Richard, who at the scene ruled the death a suicide but ordered an autopsy out of what he said was "an abundance of caution."

<http://www.reporternews.com/2001/texas/fine0204.html> ✱

Harris County's chief medical examiner was fined $1,000 on Friday as part of a settlement reach with the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners for allowing an unlicensed pathologist to perform autopsies.

Dr. Joye Carter had faced stiffer punishment, including revocation of her medical license and the loss of her job, as a result of the investigation.

[snip]

Opponents tried to have Carter fired for the Van Dusen incident and for attracting two whistleblower lawsuits, both of which the county lost. In October 1999, Harris County commissioners split on whether to fire Carter after they concluded their an investigation.

***

And guess who was D.C. Medical Examiner at the time of Paul Wilcher's death, blocking media attempts to view autopsy reports? Joye Carter appears to be the Coroner Of Choice when it comes to cover-ups, which may be why she still has her job and her license . . .

Sarah McClendon is petitioning Dr. JOYE CARTER of the D. C. Medical Examiner's office to submit this forensic evidence for further study. Dr. Carter hasn't moved with alacrity to permit or facilitate this.

I wonder how much of this went on during the investigation of the death of Lt Alan Mabry.
